JUDGE HARTWELL'S SERVICE

Judge A. S. Hartwell's death this morning brings more than ordinary sadness to the community. For forty-four years he has made Hawaii his home. His splendid record in public life has been an inspiration to achievement in this commonwealth; his finely-constituted personality made for him enduring friendships. He was a man of the highest type of moral and physical bravery. During one of the Civil War's most terrible battles he conducted himself with extraordinary courage, sustaining four wounds. His quality of moral courage was not less. Throughout his long residence in these islands, through times of political confusion, his was a steady personality and one that lent confidence to any cause that engaged his support.

With Judge Hartwell the holding of public office was not merely an official duty, to be given mechanical attention; it was a moral obligation, to be faced for the people he represented. During much of his later public life he had to contend with physical pain, but it did not lessen the high quality of his service on the bench. After his retirement from the justice, he did not lose his active interest in Hawaiian affairs. His ripe knowledge of men and events, his mature judgment, made his acquaintance something to be prized.

The territory can ill afford to lose men of Judge Hartwell's character, but in the sense of personal bereavement with which the news of his death is so widely received, there is solace in the permanency of the example he has left as a legacy to Hawaii.

TURKEY'S INTERNAL TROUBLES

Most of Turkey's present troubles, internal and external, are now being traced by students of international affairs, to the treatment the Young Turks have meted out to all who opposed their views, and particularly to the persecution of the Greek church in the country.

Instead of trying to blend the heterogeneous elements in Turkey, and thus be able to present a united front to the steady encroachments of more powerful European nations, the Young Turks have apparently allowed their prejudices to find full sway. Under the reign of Abdul Hamid, the Greeks were fairly well treated. The Greek church, which had won certain privileges from centuries of struggle, was able to hold these privileges, and the Greeks generally were given their full rights. The Young Turks have tried to annul the rights of the church, even after the declaration of the much-vaunted constitution, and in Macedonia, that land of fire and bloodshed, the new regime, so far from ameliorating the hapless condition of the Greeks, has apparently endeavored to drive them out by a relentless furtherance of its own "nationalist" doctrines.

The Greek patriarch, Joachim, of whom people in the United States know practically nothing, is conceded to be one of the cleverest and far-seeing among the Christian religious heads, and he has won the devotion of his followers to an extent almost unknown in latter-day religion. The patriarch is strongly opposed to the policy of the Young Turks and his opposition is a serious element in the present internal strife.

FRUIT TRADE IN DANGER

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has announced his intention of establishing a strict quarantine on the Hawaiian islands under the new federal plant law, and has set September 16 as the date on which hearings will be closed.

The stringency of this new law is revealed by the Star-Bulletin's Washington correspondent, who writes this paper as follows:

Whenever the secretary of agriculture shall determine that the unrestricted importation of any plants, fruits, vegetables, roots, bulbs, seeds or other plant products not included in the term "nursery stock," may result in the entry into the United States or any of its territories of injurious plant diseases or insect pests, he may establish a drastic quarantine against the places of exportation. A hearing must be given in public to all interested parties before a quarantine edict is promulgated.

It is especially provided that "the quarantine provisions, as applying to the white-pine blister rust, potato wart and the Mediterranean fruit fly, shall become and be effective upon the passage of this act."

With the possibility of Hawaii's fresh pineapples and bananas being barred from California, it behooves local businessmen and commercial bodies to bestir themselves. It is true that Dr. C. L. Marlatt, the noted federal entomologist, who is now here, says reassuringly that there is not likely to be an immediate change in the present quarantine system, and that the conditions will probably remain as they are under the present system, which is a sort of unofficial arrangement between Hawaii and California.

But, adds Dr. Marlatt, the federal government is going to see that fruit and plant exportations are properly inspected.

It is quite plain, then, that unless this new inspection system works out satisfactorily, Hawaii is in great danger of having the bars put up on the export of all fresh fruits, which would wreck a prospering banana and pineapple trade. Moreover, it is to be noted that on the very day Dr. Marlatt arrived here the secretary of agriculture declared his intention of establishing the strict quarantine and gave official notice of the hearings to be held.

Under such circumstances, Hawaii can ill afford to depend upon fortune to favor her fruit trade. The local commercial bodies have contended throughout the fruit-fly controversy that the pest does not breed in fresh pineapples and bananas, and this contention should be at once submitted to the secretary of agriculture in such form that it will carry weight. The system of inspection to be developed by the federal government should be given every possible assistance by Hawaii. One of the most serious charges against the present system has been that it was lax and ineffective. The searching of passengers' baggage, it was charged, has been desultory and in many cases not carried out at all. The Star-Bulletin places no credence in some of these charges, but with the federal quarantine pending not one loophole for the dangerous pest to go through should be left unguarded.

Months of agitation of this subject has now brought the territory under the minute scrutiny of the federal department of agriculture. Hawaii's fresh fruit trade is in the balance. It will be inexcusable negligence if the resources of the territory and of Hawaii's businessmen are not swung in with the federal strength in the campaign to protect Hawaii's trade.

The Star-Bulletin will begin tomorrow the publication of a splendid story of adventure, "The Honor of the Snows," by James Oliver Curwood. Mr. Curwood's remarkable work as a story-writer has brought his name to the front in the past two years, until today he is one of the most popular of authors. "The Honor of the Snows" is a story of the faraway northwest, where Mr. Curwood has spent much of his life. It will be published serially, the Saturday Star-Bulletin containing an instalment each week.

Secretary Knox's official rank on his present visit to Japan is special ambassador, and Randolph S. Miller, chief of the far eastern division of the department of state, is secretary. Mr. Miller has a long and distinguished diplomatic service and is held in high regard both in the Orient and in Washington.

A published statement this morning that a combine has been effected between the "good government league, the whiskey bunch," etc., is almost as ridiculous as the Democratic ticket the morning paper has recently espoused.

It's a safe prediction that Col. Roosevelt won't overlook this Panama canal scrap much longer. He will be making campaign material out of it in another week or two.

Col. Roosevelt kindly allows Taft a chance to carry six states. He gave Taft about that much chance to win the nomination, too.

That woman in Columbus who had a "sacred knife" for the president must have been trying to beat the big stick.

Roosevelt is plainly on the defensive in this Standard Oil-Penrose row.

Secretary Knox's brief visit made him a territory full of friends.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

WALTER KENDALL — Although challenged I refuse to ride in the ladies' race on Labor Day.
E. L. SCHWARZBERG — Real estate is holding its own. As far as politics is concerned, I believe the Republican party will have no trouble in making and electing a good slate.

L. D. TIMMONS — The first I knew about my being a candidate for county auditor on the Democratic ticket was what I read in the morning paper. Nobody had any authority to use my name in that way.

GEORGE W. PATY — We are constantly receiving new applications for membership in the Good Templars organization and it won't be surprising if we find our membership greatly increased at the end of a month.

MARSTON CAMPBELL — I believe the critical period in the water supply situation has passed, and that within a short time we will have an ample supply and incoming water to satisfy all demands for the next six or eight months.

W. H. HOOCS — There has never been an industry started here which has appealed so much to the poor as the algaroba feed mill one does. We have stations all over town to buy all the beans that children and servants can gather.

SPENCER BOWEN — We are going to institute dancing classes for the younger children at Palama settlement in answer to a number of petitions that have been coming in regularly from the youngsters that they be admitted to the dancing classes.
SHERIFF JARRETT — Every time somebody begins talking about things being quiet at the police station, things begin starting like the beginning of a Fourth of July celebration and we have our own time trying to get around to a dozen different things at once.

A. E. MURPHY — The odor wafted up from the restaurant below makes the federal courtroom smell like a kitchen. As a result, after enduring the fumes all morning, I have little appetite for my noonday luncheon. Yes, it is saving my money but it's ruining my stomach.

PERSONALITIES

A. LEWIS, JR., Second Vice President and manager of the Bank of Hawaii, returned yesterday from a tour of the States and Europe.

ROYAL D. MEAD, director of the bureau of labor and statistics of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, left in the Manchuria for the Orient, to be absent five months.

FILIPINO EN ROUTE TO HAWAII DIES OF PLAGUE IN CHINA

MANILA, July 31.—The Hongkong health authorities have notified the bureau of health of the discovery in that city of a case of bubonic plague in a Filipino who was bound for Hawaii. They claim he contracted the disease in the Philippines.

Dr. Heiser at once investigated the matter and nailed the lie, proving conclusively that the man left Manila July 6 for Hongkong, arriving there on the 12th, and developed the disease there on the 18th.

Dr. Heiser believed the man contracted the disease in Kowloon, where he was living for the time being.

TOBACCO INDUSTRY IN THE PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Aug. 3.—There were 284,918,845 cigars and 4,404,929,808 cigarettes made in the Philippines during the fiscal year just passed. Of these 174,994,831 cigars and 35,776,750 cigarettes were exported, the cigars going to twenty-six different countries and the cigarettes to eight.

The report of the collector of internal revenue for the fiscal year just passed shows that during the year the total collections amounted to $10,592,084.15, as against $9,603,065.60 for 1911, an increase of $989,018.55, or 10 per cent. Of these receipts, $460,851.50 was from new sources.

The sum of $528,167 was due to increases in the output of manufactures of taxable articles and to a great improvement in business conditions throughout the islands.

JUDGE HARTWELL

DEAD

(Timing as such until he resigned in 1911. Married in 1872, the daughter of Dr. James W. Smith, an American missionary physician of Kauai.)

General Hartwell was a Republican, member Phi Beta Kappa, Mil. Order of the Sons of the American Revolution, Loyal Legion and G. A. R.

Funeral services for the late Chief Justice General Hartwell will be held at the residence tomorrow afternoon and in accordance with his last wishes will be simple in character. Following the last rites, the pallbearers will convey the remains to the cemetery. The members of the G. A. R. of which General Hartwell was a member, will attend in a body.

On Sunday private services for the family will be held at the residence and the Rev. H. H. Parker will preach.

Courts Adjourn Today.

Among members of his profession the news of the death of Judge Hartwell was received with particularly keen regret, and all courts were adjourned today. President F. E. Thompson of the Hawaiian Bar Association moved adjournment in the circuit courts, and U. S. District Attorney Breckons in the federal court. The federal court proceedings show the following:

Friday, August 30, 1912.
In the Matter of the Hon. A. S. Hartwell, Deceased.

Mr. Robert W. Breckons having moved that court be adjourned out of respect to the late Judge A. S. Hartwell, whose death was on this day reported, the court made the following remarks thereon, to-wit:

Judge Clemons:—"The court regrets to learn of the death of Judge Hartwell, who among other distinguished and valued services to his country has in particular served Hawaii so long and so well as a member of the bar and of the supreme court bench, and who was so highly honored and respected as a lawyer and a man. Out of respect to his memory the court will not sit this day but adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.
City Pays Respect.

The city and county officially paid respect to Judge Hartwell by closing the offices for this afternoon, following a meeting of the supervisors at noon. The following resolutions were presented by Supervisor Charles N. Arnold and unanimously passed:

"Whereas, an almighty and far-seeing Supreme power has removed from our midst one whose commanding qualities and gracious personality brought to him the universal respect of the residents of Honolulu, as his regard for his fellow men and his work in their behalf brought to him the love of all who knew him, and

"Whereas, his many and noble attributes are an inspiration to all the people of this city, and his death a blow to the municipality, and to each of us, its citizens,

"Therefore be it resolved that the board of supervisors of the city and county of Honolulu does hereby recognize the loss to the community in the death of Judge A. S. Hartwell and hereby expresses its grief at his demise and its sympathy for those bereaved.

"And be it further resolved that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the board and a copy be transmitted to the relatives of the deceased. And be it further resolved that the various departments of the city and county suspend business for the balance of the day."

HIBERNIANS BAN SUNDAY PICNICS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—Sunday and holiday picnics were tabooed at today's session of the State Convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. An amendment to that effect was made to the by-laws following a recommendation by the amendments committee, the delegates unanimously voting that such a rule would raise the standard of the order.

President McGarry presented his report, which showed the organization was in good condition from both the financial and the membership standpoints. The reports of Secretary Griffith and Treasurer Donohue dealt with State and division affairs, which were shown to be in a satisfactory condition.

Rev. Joseph McManus spoke on the growth and development of the order in the West, and Rev. Paul J. Dillon talked on the study of Irish history in parochial schools.

An informal discussion of the Hibernian Rifles, the military branch of the order, brought out a strong sentiment for enlarging both membership and equipment. The ladies' auxiliary held an executive session, an interesting feature of which was an address by Miss Eileen Hennessy, president of the juvenile branch.
